(con't from front) been any issues with it getting packed enough to feel good. The stage is a good height for stage dives, the sound is pretty great, and there are lots of spots to get out of the crowd if you need it.

Lopez is back! Lopez is a kinda fancy skateshop with big pants that had shows in the basement for a while. Recently they came out of retirement, unfortunately not the dungeon basement, the recent show was in the store on the main floor. Yay for better accessibility, even though GLOWING ORB still felt trapped in a dungeon.

The Suoni empire runs Casa del Popolo, Sala Rosa, and Sotterenea. These are probably the best three venues in the city for the combo of all important things. Some of them can be all ages, they are staffed and run by good people, and all have great sound.

BIG SHOWS!

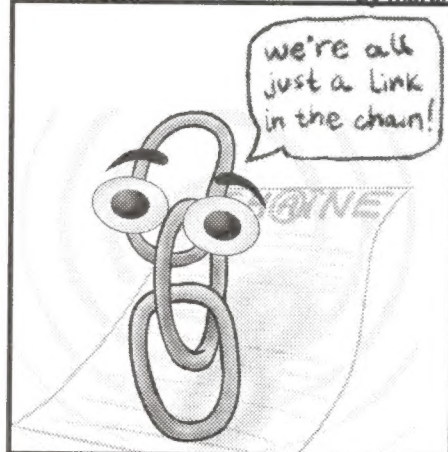

The number of big shows has been pretty incredible lately. S.H.I.T. in the pool was a few months ago now but GEL selling out the better room at Furf's, Montreal Madhouse, and Yell Out Fest were all super well attended. Every gig I've been to at TraXide has been pretty packed. Between new promoters, new folks coming out and new bands the scene has great energy right now.

COMMUNITY

It's great to see shows back, new people, new bands, and new and old friends, but I really wish folks would mask at indoor shows. Lots of our friends are caretakers or immunocompromised and they can't take the risk of an unmasked room so they just aren't coming out anymore. It would be pretty sick to show the kind of community care we all dream about. I want to see it be safer for all our old friends be able to attend shows again.
